Supervisors and Coordinators?
Different agencies use different terminology. We use the word supervisor to refer to employees that are shadowing on a given day. We use the word coordinator to refer to the person who is the primary point of contact at the agency that coordinates interns coming to the agency (or part of an agency). The Coordinator is also the person who is the contact for the instructor of the course overseeing academic credit for the student. Depending on the agency, a student may have a different supervisor every day or the same one all semester. The coordinator may or may not be a daily supervisor.
• At the end of the internship, the agency intern coordinator completes a final evaluation of the student and gives them an exit briefing including suggestions for improving their professional potential. The final evaluation is returned directly to the instructor. The evaluation form is included in this packet or may be obtained from the student.

• We appreciate it when an agency works with a student’s schedule, but the student (and his or her expectations) must fit with the agency needs and requirements. Your initial interview with a student should establish what parameters you will place on their work hours as well as how flexible those can be. An internship will have a substantial amount of observation, but should also include either real or mock substantive, productive activities. It should not be only a "clerk" position that is normally filled by an employee, answering phones, filing, etc. without learning the professional side of the agency. Some of that kind of work is appropriate, but interns are to be treated as pre-professionals who are paired with working professionals to observe, explore, and learn.

• When possible interns should be placed with daily supervisors who excel in their profession and/or who have training experience (for example, a Field Training Officer) in order to increase student interaction focused on student learning. Obviously, our interns are often in situations and agencies where they are not legally permitted to perform the actual work being done by agents of the organization. However, they can perform parallel tasks that are observed by their supervisor. For example, while shadowing an employee, the employee should quiz the student about what they are observing, what would they do under the circumstances, etc. They should require the student to write narrative reports as if those would be official reports, that they can compare with reports that an employee writes and then have their work critiqued for improvement.

• Interns have several assigned essays that require input from the agency (such as agency policies or mission statements) and personnel. These are reflection essays based on activities in their textbook, previous learning, and their observations in the agency. Interns should show these assignments to their supervisors to seek advice on how best to gain the information needed for the assignments.

If an intern must be reprimanded (most commonly for tardiness or dress code violations, but occasionally for something more serious), please call or email the instructor about the situation. We view this as part of their professional development and want students to learn to take correction as professionals to improve their professional bearing and future performance. If a student engages in a problematic pattern of behavior, please contact the instructor to discuss options. If the student engages in egregious behavior such that they must be suspended or terminated immediately, please contact the instructor as soon as appropriate.

If an intern has been injured, please contact Texas A&M University-Texarkana Police immediately at 903-334-6611 and they will alert the appropriate campus representatives.

If you have any questions, do not hesitate to contact the instructor of the student’s course. We recognize the sacrifice your agency makes on our behalf and welcome your cooperation in this process. We want to do our best to maintain the healthiest of relationships with our internship agency partners.
Student Intern Performance Evaluation

Circle the appropriate score in each category based on your overall evaluation of the student’s performance and growth demonstrated over the course of their internship. Use the following as a guide:

10 = (100%) Superior student, demonstrating the traits of someone you would like to hire.
7 = 70% or Minimally Acceptable; 5-6 = 50-60%, Demonstrating potential, but still does not show adequate ability or responsibility, 1= Behavior sufficiently problematic to warrant termination.
